
Children on the street

This isn't a story about orphans living on the streets, it's about everyday children who don't understand the dangers of playing near traffic.
We've all seen kids running around, riding bikes, or playing football where cars usually drive.
Unlike adults, children often aren't aware of the risks or the rules. Parents need to realize how serious this is.
Kids can be seriously hurt if they're not taught how to stay safe.So here's a message to all parents:
Teach your children the basics of traffic safety before letting them out to play. It could save their lives and give everyone more peace of mind.
